

HOLIDAY ON THE BAY

Tour 13383

Friday • December 1, 2017

It's time for a unique holiday experience, and we certainly don't have to travel far...just all the way to Green Bay!

Our first stop is at the National Railroad Museum for their Festival of Trees — a display of Christmas trees decorated by area businesses and organizations. We tour the museum, journeying back to the 1800s and the romance of traveling by rail.

Let Me Be Frank Productions provides our entertainment this afternoon with their Christmas Show at the beautiful Meyer Theatre. This troupe presents a new offering every year and will delight us with favorite holiday songs both old and new. Lunch will be included at the theatre prior to the show.

Next we stop at Bay Park Square for some “retail therapy” just in time for the holidays. Choose to shop at some of their 90+ specialty retailers and grab a bite to eat at either their food court or one of their adjacent restaurants (Dutch treat).

Our final stop of the day will be at the Green Bay Botanical Gardens for their dazzling “Garden of Lights.” This stunning winter display features nearly a quarter of a million twinkling lights! The Botanical Garden will amaze us with its transformation into a dramatic winter landscape featuring botanical lighting displays inspired by the Garden's natural features. Walk through as much or as little of the display as you like; the choice is yours. Just remember to wear comfortable shoes and bring your hat and gloves as this is an outdoor display. L
